

PUTTING YOUR WEDDING ON THE WEB

A newly launched website allows couples to create personalised professional wedding websites for free

Dublin - September 2007: A newly launched Irish based website, SharedWeddings.com, is allowing engaged couples to create their own professional wedding websites for free. Anyone with the most basic computer skills can now create a beautiful wedding website in minutes.

Planning a wedding is one of the most exciting times in a couple's life together. However, planning a wedding involves co-ordinating an endless list of tasks such as managing invitations, copying hundreds of accommodation lists and sets of directions, contacting guests about pre-wedding events, collecting RSVPs, and keeping track of tasks. Now a recently launched wedding website, SharedWeddings.com, is simplifying wedding planning by allowing couples to put all their wedding information on the web for family and friends to access at anytime.

At SharedWeddings.com couples can display details of all their wedding events including wedding ceremony and reception, add important information for guests such as accommodation details and directions, create multiple photo albums, keep a wedding blog, create polls and quizzes and allow guests to RSVP online. There are numerous other features available including a choice of several different wedding website themes and colours, free wedding planning tools and the ability for family and friends to leave messages on the couple's website.

SharedWeddings.com also serves as a virtual wedding community for couples planning their wedding. The site allows users to browse other couples websites, chat with other bride and grooms to be on the wedding forums, create a friends list through meeting other couples on the site, and post messages to other users.

“It is becoming increasingly popular to create a wedding website. Having a website for your wedding means that all of your family and friends can easily be kept up to date about all of the wedding plans and pre-wedding events.” says Thomas Keane, CEO SharedWeddings.com.

“I came upon your site in my quest for finding somewhere to set up a wedding website. This is by far the best.” says one recently signed up user.
